

Fossil Gods

Back when there were therapods,
Like the mighty, fierce T. Rex,
Were there many, many gods,
Like for food and drink and sex?

Or was it us that started that?
And a God in our image, and only one,
You know, you have to tip your hat,
To whomever recognized the Son.

But before that, there was another Jew,
Who was monotheistic,
Discarding Zeus, Neptune, who knows who,
And said dinosaurs are not realistic.

Now we know those critters were real,
Had gods and prayed before a meal,
They didn't cuss, cheat nor steal,
Or care about our God or how we feel.
